Critical Conversations in Education: Decolonization of the Curriculum

You are invited to participate in upcoming seminars and workshops on decolonizing the curriculum. Both events are free and open to the public.

These online events are part of the Critical Conversations in Education: Decolonizing the Curriculum hosted by the Darden College of Education at Old Dominion University. The series encourages dialogue and action for the inclusion of all cultures and knowledge systems in formal education settings and recognizes that these changes are necessary for a sustainable future.

Culturally Responsive School Leadership

20 April 2021 at 7:30-8:30 pm ET (Washington, DC)

Dr. Muhammad Khalifa, Professor of Educational Administration at The Ohio State University and author of Culturally Responsive School Leadership (Harvard University Press, 2018) will host a seminar that explores: How should humanization, anti-oppressiveness, and cultural responsiveness be systematized in school? This presentation focuses on how school leaders can effectively serve minoritized students—those who have been historically marginalized in school and society.

Decolonization of the Curriculum Workshop

13 May 2021 at 7:00-9:00pm ET (Washington, DC)

Dr. Sharon Stein, Assistant Professor of Educational Studies at the University of British Columbia will facilitate a workshop drawing on the work of the Gesturing Towards Decolonial Futures Collective. The workshop will offer participants a chance to engage with the intellectual, affective, and relational dimensions of decolonization so that we might interrupt harmful patterns of knowing, being, and relating, and learn how to live together differently.
